Key:
Elections are listed vertically, states are listed horizontally. Each instance of a state's participation in a presidential election is filled in with the color of the party for which it voted. (See chart below for the colors assigned to each party.) The letter in each space is the first letter in the last name of the person who won that state's electoral votes; the first two letters were used if more than one person in that election had last names starting with the same letter. Note that letters are keyed specifically to the people involved in each particular election, and thus have relative, not universal, referents; in other words, a "B" listed for a state in the row that corresponds to the election of George H.W. Bush means that G.H.W. Bush won that state that year, but a "B" in the row for William McKinley's first election stands for William Jennings Bryan.

Chart of Colors Assigned to Each Party:
Party	Color	Total Number of States Won in All Elections	Total Number of States Won in All Elections, Adding Split Votes and the Democratic/Populist Combined Votes to Their Parties' Main Listing
Federalist		41	41.5
Democrat-Republican		100	100.5
Split vote		2	(5 Fed, 5 Dem-Rep, .3 Dem, .3 Rep, .3 Pop)

Democrat		793	815.3
National Republican		15	15
Independent Democrat		1	1
Anti-Mason		1	1
Whig		60	60
Republican		940	940.3
American/Know Nothing		1	1
National Democrat		11	11
Constitutional Union		3	3
Populist/People's		4	26.3
Both Democrat and Populist		22	0
Progressive/Bull Moose		7	7
States' Rights/Dixiecrat		4	4
American Independent		5	5

Note:	For the purposes of this chart, winning a state's electoral college means winning the majority of the electoral votes from that state
Note:	Only those contenders who won at least one state's electoral vote are listed here
Note:	For Washington's first election, North Carolina and Rhode Island had not yet ratified Constitution, and New York sent its votes too late
Note:	In Jefferson's first election, Maryland split its electoral votes evenly between Jefferson and Adams
Note:	In Lincoln's second election, Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia did not take part due to the Civil War
Note:	In Grant's first election, Mississippi, Texas, and Virginia did not take part due to issues related to Reconstruction
Note:	In Grant's second election, Arkansas and Louisiana did not take part due to issues related to Reconstruction
Note:	In Cleveland's second election, North Dakota split its electoral votes evenly between Cleveland, Harrison, and Weaver
